

*California's prettiest small town p.38

Sunset

LIVING IN THE WEST | HOME | TRAVEL | FOOD | GARDEN

GET THE BACKYARD OF YOUR DREAMS

- 14 instant ways to make it gorgeous
- The best colors for your garden

Lemon-roasted chicken, quick crab tacos
+24 other tasty recipes

2008 WESTERN
HOME AWARDS

"I want to live there!"
houses

APRIL 2008

$4.99US $6.50CAN

SUNSET.COM

SAN MIGUEL: Mexico's magical city

Dreaming in color

Use vivid hues to make your backyard come alive

BY PETER O. WHITELEY
PHOTOGRAPHS BY THOMAS J. STORY

Create an intimate mood

In a corner of the garden used for meditation, a spare screen of glaucous (podocarpus, horsetail, and bamboo) forms the backdrop for a tea station for two.

Garden Design

Go for one bold hit

A floral-print pillow dresses up a teak chair (Dei Mar chair, $799 as shown; Smith & Hawken, smithandhawken.com). BELOW Yellow kangaroo paws echo the golden-hued door.

RED, YELLOW, AND BLUE are brave choices in a garden—an exuberant approach to landscape design. But Moshe and Fegie Barkan's 15-foot-wide backyard in Studio City, California, pulls off the feat with style. "Things feel more alive with color," says Fegie, an artist.

The palette's genesis was the imposing citrus yellow fireplace, designed to pop out of a gray retaining wall. Plantings emphasize lush textures and graceful forms rather than color, allowing hardscape and accessories to take center stage.

The yard is treated as rooms: a personal retreat, a dining patio, and a living area, where the couple can cozy up to the fire in lounge chairs (Gisele chairs, $950 each; Design Within Reach, dwr.com or 800/944-2233).

INFO Landscape design: Rob Pressman, TGP Landscape Architecture, Encino, CA (tgpinc.net or 818/907-8460). Architecture: Jeffrey Michael Tohl, The Architecture Studio, Los Angeles (thearchitecturestudio.net or 310/652-7890)

Install a major focal point

The yellow stucco fireplace and low walls give the outdoor room definition—a sense reinforced by the patio of concrete squares edged with grass. (The meditation corner is behind the dining table and podocarpus hedge.)

GET THIS PALETTE

HOW TO ADD STRONG COLOR OUTDOORS

Three primary hues, one relatively small backyard. The secret to making it all work? Let one color shine, and repeat the other two sparingly amid soft greenery.

Yellow: the star player

To balance the sunny fireplace and seat wall, outdoor accessories (like chunky candles, a vase, and a patterned tablecloth) are in the same dominant hue.

Red: the secondary splash

The home's deep red siding is reinforced by judicious accents (chairs on the dining terrace) as well as plantings (scarlet geraniums and abutilon).

Blue: the subtle embellishments

From pale aqua throw pillows to rich teal floor cushions, the shades of blue run the gamut, but all provide a visual counterpoint to the hot reds and yellows.

Green: the cooling backdrop

Foliage plants—split-leaf philodendron, bamboo hedges, fringes of horsetail, and a grid of grass—act as a tranquil, neutral canvas for the bright colors. >48

Four instant-color ideas

Bring in these decorative touches for a vibrant makeover in minutes

1

2

3

4

1 CONVERSATION PIECE A red teapot may be small, but it packs a powerful punch.

2 ECLECTIC TRIO Grouping items of different styles but similar hues enlivens a quiet corner of the garden.

3 BRIGHT OUTDOOR CHAIRS Red chairs (Marais AC chairs in vermillion, $250 each; Design Within Reach, dwr.com or 800/944-2233) are an adventurous choice, especially when paired with the oversize floral graphics of the tablecloth.

4 ELEGANT VESSEL A single vase (Ovation vase, $13; Ikea, ikea.com) in a more subdued shade of yellow adds depth to the overall color scheme. ■